[nationally recognized academics]

What you learn in college will help direct the course of your future. That's why we take academics seriously at Milligan. Our faculty are among the best in their fields and our academic programs are lauded by accrediting agencies and national organizations. Our unique humanities program — incorporating history, literature, philosophy, theology, fine arts, and writing — is the cornerstone of the Milligan liberal arts education. We think it's important for tomorrow's leaders to be individuals who can think for themselves, analyze information and ideas, and explore the nature and meaning of the world.

[proud heritage]

In the past 10 years, Milligan athletic teams have won 31 conference titles and made 37 national tournament appearances. The college maintains high standards for its athletes and has produced numerous All-Americans, All-Conference, and Academic All-American players. Athletics play a key role in molding and shaping the college experience at Milligan.

The college has 14 intercollegiate programs that compete in the Appalachian Athletic Conference (AAC) and National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics (NAIA).

[Christ-centered]

Everywhere you turn at Milligan, you'll be challenged to understand and explore what it means to be a Christian in today's world. Exploring how different subjects such as the humanities and sciences relate to each other, and to see God's hand in all subjects — from accounting to history to fine arts — is important to your personal growth. Ultimately everything we do at Milligan — in the classroom, dorm room, or athletic field — is designed to encourage you to reflect on how your faith is related to your career choice and what it means to be "called" to lives of service.

Students must meet Milligan College's admissions requirements and be offered acceptance to receive a scholarship.
