

discovery

“Milligan has been an experience of change and of shaping, of discovering God, myself, and others. I’ve studied abroad in France and Uganda and found places to be active in the local community, as well.”

AREA OF HUMANE LEARNING

Curriculum

The Humane Learning Area encompasses a wide variety of subjects, including literature, languages, philosophy, history, fine arts, and theology, many of which are part of the college’s liberal arts curriculum. Humanities majors work with a faculty member to create a personalized, interdisciplinary major that helps them see and explore the connections and relationships between disciplines, as well as the Christian faith. The English major can be tailored to focus on teaching, writing, or preparation for graduate school. An advanced writing course offers writers a great way to hone their skills and includes a trip to the national Festival of Faith and Writing, where they can meet writers, editors, and publishers. All students are encouraged to participate in the student-edited literary magazine, The Phoenix. Popular courses include Fiction of C. S. Lewis, Medieval Literature, Fiction by Women, Images of Jesus in the Arts, Japanese Literature, and more.

Faculty

Milligan’s faculty are recognized and published scholars. They have doctoral degrees from the Universities of Tennessee, South Carolina, Wisconsin-Madison, Duke, Indiana, Virginia Tech, Emory, and Maryland. Most importantly, they are excellent teachers and caring mentors.

Successful Graduates

Many grads are teaching English or literature in public and private schools and colleges. Some are journalists, editors, or creative writers. Some are practicing law. Still others have gone on to work in public relations, to study library science or information technology, and to work in marketing, customer assistance, and in other aspects of the business world. Others have pursued graduate studies, including architecture, English, theology, and medical school.

Study Abroad

Spending a semester in an off-campus study program is strongly encouraged. Opportunities include Australia, China, Costa Rica, the Middle East, Russia, Oxford, and Uganda through the Council for Christian Colleges & Universities. The popular Humanities European Study Tour offers a multi-week tour of historical and cultural sites, led by Milligan professors.

“Human achievement in the arts of thought and expression is one of the major studies in a liberal arts college.”

— Jack Knowles, Ph.D.
