[COMMUNICATIONS]

Diversified Communication

The traditional media industry is changing rapidly and requires professionals to have a diversified skill-set. Putting graduates in influential roles in a world where mass media are a driving force is our mission. Students are educated for a wide range of careers in the field of communications in mainstream media and church settings. Milligan graduates are distinguished by their solid theoretical knowledge, their professional skills, and their ability to think and act as Christians in a world where all media converge to form a set of compelling communications tools.

Whether you seek a career as a digital journalist, graphic designer, interactive media designer, film producer, photojournalist, editor, public relations director for a non-profit organization, or church media development and design, Milligan's Communications Area has an area of study to fit your needs.

Facilities

Students learn and work in state-of-the-art Mac workstations, digital media editing bays, a radio station, and a video production studio.

Experience

Students work alongside professionals in their field through internships in a variety of settings. Co-curricular opportunities to gain hands-on experience include The Stampede Online-TV-Print, The Buffalo (annual magazine and website), and WUMC-FM 90.5 (campus radio station). Students also have the opportunity to apply for a one semester residency at the Washington Journalism Center, Los Angeles Film Studies Program, or the Contemporary Music Center through the Council for Christian Colleges and Universities (CCCU).
