3. Headphones
4. If you have a tripod, bring it
5. Your camera's instruction manual. One of the most important and helpful things you can do prior to our week together is to read the instruction manual that came with your camera. The more familiar you are with your camera, the better we can 'hit the ground running. As you read through it, pay special attention to topics such as:
 - How to set the white balance. For now, I recommend setting this on Auto.
 - Whether your camera allows for "manual" mode; and if it allows you to set the shutter speed and aperture. Not all point-and-shoot cameras allow you to do these things. If your camera doesn't have this feature, that's ok.
 - How to change the ISO setting. For now, you can leave it on Auto.
 - How to set the photo size and quality. I recommend setting this on "Large JPEG, Fine"
 - How to turn off the flash
 - How to change the "exposure compensation" setting. Again, if your camera doesn't have this, that's ok.
6. Battery charger that came with your camera
7. A USB "jump drive" will come in handy
8. Pair of long pants, hat, sunscreen, socks, and old shoes that cover feet (not flip flops).
